Short description of the study programme:

Management generally means management. This specialty studies enterprise management and ways to manage it effectively. The main role of management is to organize the activities and efficiency of the enterprise. Management is a set of activities (planning, decision-making, organization, leadership, supervision) carried out with the effective and efficient use of resources (financial, physical, information, human resources) to achieve the goals of the organization. Since management is a broad concept, it is necessary to classify it for the proper implementation of management. Innovation management, human resource management, strategic management, logistics management, risk management, project management, field management.

In one academic year, a student takes 3 colloquiums on each subject in each semester, and an exam at the end of each semester. According to the current rules, a student who fails the exam can retake the exam in only 2 subjects.
