Short description of the study programme:

Strategy: managing challenges and issues

You'll learn how to develop an overview of key issues, gain a deeper understanding of the operational and strategic challenges related to international trade and logistics.

Logistics: rules and international flow management

You'll master the business strategies related to global logistics and trade, from breaking into foreign markets to managing physical flows and information. You'll learn how to integrate digitised techniques into operations management, as well as the basic concepts related to international transport and logistics, international transport law and customs operations.

Negotiation: understanding international rules and laws

You'll learn and practice skills in cross-cultural negotiation, international marketing and end-to-end management (from supplier to end customer), while also mastering geopolitics, international finance and international contract law in this portion of the course. International Trade and Logistics, which focuses on international trade and transport and logistics, provides all the tools you'll need for a successful career in the field. At the end of the course, you'll be able to create and manage end-to-end and sustainable strategies that deal with the logistics of complex international exchanges.

In one academic year, a student takes 3 colloquiums on each subject in each semester, and an exam at the end of each semester. According to the current rules, a student who fails the exam can retake the exam in only 2 subjects.
